New Paintings in the Studio

A short break to Naples and Pompeii in May gave me plenty of new ideas. I was amazed by the beauty of the ancient treasures in the museum such as exquisite miniature mosaics depicting everyday scenes, animals and plants in fine detail. Pompeii is amazing – to walk the streets and step into people's homes and gardens with the same views of Vesuvius that the residents once enjoyed before disaster struck, was awe-inspiring. I returned feeling excited about creating new compositions that commit some of these memories to paint. 'The Roman Garden' (90 x 90 cm acrylic on canvas £1500) is one from the latest series of paintings, merging different elements from mosaics and local scenery. All large paintings are available to 'try before you buy'.
